

M&T Bank Corporation Announces Preliminary Stress Capital Buffer

July 1, 2025

BUFFALO, N.Y., July 1, 2025 /PRNewswire/ -- M&T Bank Corporation ("M&T" or the "Company") (NYSE: MTB) today announced the Federal Reserve Board has determined the Company's preliminary stress capital buffer ("SCB"), under the current rules, is 2.7%, effective October 1, 2025, down from the previous SCB of 3.8%. The Federal Reserve Board will provide the Company's final SCB requirement on or before August 31, 2025.

The Company's regulatory minimum CET1 ratio implied by the preliminary SCB is now 7.2%, down from 8.3%. M&T's CET1 ratio as of March 31, 2025 was 11.50% and the company expects to reach a CET1 ratio of 11.0% in 2025.

"Our decision to participate in the 2025 Supervisory Stress Test was based on the strength of the company's earnings power and continued risk management efforts, including a reduction in our commercial real estate concentration and improved asset quality," said René Jones, M&T's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. "The lower SCB reflects those efforts and will allow the company to continue to support our customers and communities and return capital to shareholders over time. This SCB of 2.7% represents an improvement of 2.0% compared to the 4.7% SCB in the 2022 Supervisory Stress Test."
