STORRS, Conn., Oct. 21, 2026 /PRNewswire/ -- M&T Bank (NYSE: MTB) today announced the expansion of their strategic partnership with the University of Connecticut. As the official bank of the University and the UConn Huskies, the evolution of the partnership will include multi-year naming rights for Gampel Pavilion, one of the most iconic venues in college athletics. Under the agreement, the arena will be renamed as M&T Bank Center at Gampel Pavilion.

With more than 100 branches in Connecticut, M&T Bank has long prioritized strengthening the communities it serves. This collaboration with UConn builds on that legacy, reflecting M&T's commitment to education and community investment, both in Connecticut and across its footprint.

"This partnership with UConn represents more than a sponsorship and a name on a building, it's a shared commitment to the future of education, economic mobility and civic leadership across our region. Gampel Pavilion is one of the most recognizable and meaningful gathering places in Connecticut, and M&T is honored to now be a part of the legacy made possible by Harry A. Gampel," said Michael Weinstock, M&T Bank's Regional President in Hartford. "For generations, Gampel has been home to some of the defining moments in UConn athletics and a source of connection and pride for communities across Connecticut. We're proud to stand alongside Connecticut's flagship university, and one of its most respected institutions, to invest in programs and in an arena that create lasting impact for students, families and communities."

"Our partnership with M&T Bank has had an immediate and lasting impact across all of our campuses and communities. This agreement continues and enhances that relationship, benefitting UConn and the state for many years to come," said University of Connecticut president Radenka Maric. "Thanks to the support and investment of the General Assembly and Gov. Ned Lamont, the improvements currently underway at Gampel Pavilion will bring that iconic venue into the next generation and provide an unparalleled fan experience. M&T Bank's commitment to UConn builds on those investments and will also help expand educational opportunities and promote holistic student success across our institution."

"Part of what makes UConn the Basketball Capital of the World is the incredible home court advantage our teams enjoy while playing on campus," said UConn Director of Athletics David Benedict. "So many great memories and moments have been made over the last 36 years in the arena that Harry A. Gampel originally made possible. We are grateful to our partners at M&T Bank for their ongoing commitment to our mission for excellence and thrilled to attach M&T Bank's name to our basketball home with the introduction of M&T Bank Center at Gampel Pavilion. In this ever-changing landscape of collegiate athletics, the investment from our state and support from M&T Bank will help ensure the continued success that we have all enjoyed over the years."

In addition to naming rights at Gampel Pavilion, the broader multimillion-dollar partnership will support academic and athletic priorities aligned with UConn's mission as a renowned public research university with regional and national reach. This will help UConn expand educational opportunities, invest in student achievement and strengthen the University's impact across Connecticut and New England. The partnership will also include investments in Connecticut-focused, co-branded activations and community engagements, which will include retail bank promotions, paid advertising, digital media inclusion and other initiatives.

As the Official Bank of UConn, M&T Bank will receive several exclusive rights, including:

- Exclusive university-wide banking sponsorship, including all campuses and schools
- Designation as the official banking partner of the UConn Huskies
- Support for student-athletes in Name, Image and Likeness opportunities
- Sponsorship of key university-wide events
- Co-branded affinity credit card and commercial cards for customers of the bank

The partnership builds on M&T Bank's broader banking relationship with UConn and UConn Athletics and reflects a shared commitment to Connecticut, higher education, athletics and community engagement.
