Liquidity Coverage Ratio Rule Overview

Bank holding companies with total consolidated assets of $100 billion or more, such as the Company, are required to provide market participant information regarding their liquidity risk profile as defined by the Liquidity Coverage Ratio (“LCR”) Rule published by the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision and as implemented by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation in the United States. M&T, having less than $250 billion in consolidated assets, is allowed to calculate its LCR using the modified LCR requirements under the LCR Rule.

The LCR Rule requires covered institutions to hold an amount of unencumbered high-quality liquid assets (“HQLA”) that equals or exceeds 100% of their respective projected net cash outflows over a 30 calendar-day stress period as calculated in accordance with the LCR Rule.

The LCR disclosures within this document provide quantitative and qualitative disclosure guidelines pertaining to the components of the LCR calculation. These components include main drivers of LCR results, composition of eligible HQLA, concentration of funding sources, and other inflows and outflows in the LCR that are not specifically identified by the required quantitative disclosures, but that management considers relevant to facilitate an understanding of the Company’s liquidity risk profile. These LCR Disclosures should be read in conjunction with the Company’s Annual Report on Form 10-K (“Form 10-K”) for the year ended December 31, 2018 and the Consolidated Financial Statements for Bank Holding Companies – FR Y-9C (“FR Y- 9C”) for the quarter ended December 31, 2018. Form 10-K is available at <https://ir.mtb.com/financial-information/sec-filings>.

The financial information presented within this LCR disclosure may differ from similar information presented in Form 10-K or the FR Y-9C. All amounts and information presented herein are in conformity with the definitions and requirements of the LCR rules. The LCR Disclosures have not been audited by M&T’s external auditors.

Liquidity Risk Management Framework

Liquidity risk is the risk that the Company's financial condition or overall safety and soundness is adversely affected by an inability (or perceived inability) to meet its obligations. Liquidity risk exists during periods of normal operations and generally increases during periods of financial stress that may be due to company-specific circumstances or external factors. The liquidity position of the Company can change at any point in time depending on a number of factors including, but not limited to, market conditions, economic factors, regulatory rulings, or reputational or operational issues. The Company maintains enough primary and contingent funding to ensure adequate liquidity to support its operations under a market and idiosyncratic event.

M&T's Board of Directors delegates the authority to oversee funding and liquidity risk management to the Asset/Liability Committee ("ALCO") through the Management Risk Committee ("MRC"). ALCO performs active, direct oversight of all liquidity risk management practices and reports any developments to the MRC and the Board based on established corporate governance processes.

The Company utilizes key risk indicators, triggers and limits to ensure management is appropriately informed of potential funding and liquidity risks that may exist on and off-balance sheet. Additionally, the Company uses stress testing to ensure there are sufficient funding sources to support on-going operations given idiosyncratic or systemic liquidity events.

Detailed discussions of the risks outlined above and other risks facing the Company are included within Form 10-K in Part I, Item 1 "Business", Part 1, Item 1A "Risk Factors", and Part II, Item 7 "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations." Furthermore, Part II, Item 7 under the heading "Forward-Looking Statements" includes a description of certain risks, uncertainties and assumptions identified by management that are difficult to predict and that could materially affect the Company's financial condition and results of operations, as well as the value of the Company's financial instruments.

For additional information about the liquidity guidelines that the Company is subject to, see "Part I—Item 1. Business—Liquidity" and Part II, Item 7 "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" under the heading "Liquidity, Market Risk, and Interest Rate Sensitivity" in Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2018.
